Title: The coverage in the communist ideology

Abstract: Journalistic gender approaches established during the communist period, either from the systematic-theoretical perspectives or from the one of practitioners are contaminated by the presence of ideological assessments and guidance, demonstrating the high degree of involvement of the Romanian Communist Party (PCR) in control of media. The review Presa noastră and a manual of the Faculty of Journalism of the Academy of Social-Political Studies Ștefan Gheorghiu reveal some point of views became obsolete nowadays, but which can explain the presence of many confusing opinions about the coverage among journalists who have graduated from the Faculty of Journalism or have specialized at their workplace, without having any specialised training.
